CHES was administered between October 10 and November 20 2024 for EU-West countries plus Iceland, Norway, Switzerland, Turkey, and the United Kingdom and between November 1, 2024 to December 17, 2024 for EU-East countries. The survey was completed by 609 political scientists specializing in political parties and European integration. This wave of the Chapel Hill Expert survey provides information about the positioning of the leadership of 279 parties in 31 countries over the course of 2024 on ideology, policy, populism, democracy, European integration, and select EU policy questions. Country coverage includes all European Union member states except for Luxembourg -- plus Iceland, Norway, Switzerland, Turkey, and the United Kingdom.² The dataset adopts the country code and party id schema of the CHES Trend file (Jolly et al. 2022) and the Speed CHES survey on Ukraine (Hooghe et al. 2024) with extensions for newly covered parties.

This survey was conducted by Ryan Bakker, Liesbet Hooghe, Seth Jolly, Gary Marks, Jonathan Polk, Jan Rovny, Marco Steenbergen, and Milada Vachudova. The platform used was Qualtrics. The CHES gratefully acknowledges research assistance from Spencer Corp, Marcos Echevarria, and Mathilda Gustafsson. We acknowledge funding from the Kenan and Burton Craige Chairs at UNC-Chapel Hill, ERC Grant #885026 TRANSNATIONAL at the EUI-Florence, and Horizon Europe project 101060899 AUTHLIB.

¹ For Version 2, we updated the following:

- BSW (311) and FW (312) used previously used numbers (pirates and DieTier), so corrected to be 313 and 314.
- Spanish seat totals: BNG has 1 seat (not 0). Podemos has 4 seats (not 5). IU has 5 seats (not 0), Sumar has 22 seats (not 26).
- Austria electionyear was 2019, but vote/seat based on 2024 so updated electionyear to be 2024.

² Too few experts completed Luxembourg.

party_id = unique identifier for each party³

party = party abbreviation

family = This classification was initially based on Hix and Lord (1997) and Marks and Wilson (2000), except that we place confessional and agrarian parties in separate categories. Family association for parties in Central/Eastern Europe was initially based on the Derksen classification (now incorporated in Wikipedia). Classifications are triangulated by a) membership or affiliation with international and EU party associations, b) self-identification, and c) extant categorizations including ParlGov (Doring and Manow 2011) and the Comparative Manifesto Project (Volkens et al. 2020). We update family codings based on ideological shifts or organizational changes as documented on the party's website or Wikipedia.⁴

³ Political parties that obtained 3% or more in the national election immediately prior to the survey or that elected at least one representative to the national or European parliament are included.

electionyear = year for national election most prior to the survey, used to calculate vote and seat.

vote = vote percentage received by the party in the national election most prior to the survey.⁵

seat = seat # of the party in the national election most prior to the survey.
